Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Will of the Gods: A Semi-Historical Drama of Mysticism and Romance, Love and Conquest, in Five Acts The following work is an attempt, however feeble, to show, through the medium of the stage, the eternal fitness of things, in a world where not only kings and queens, but every creature under the sun is the right man in the right place. And as the Law of Reincarnation and Karma, more nearly than any other philosophy, answers the why and wherefore of things just as they are, I have used that doctrine as the central idea of the story, the teaching of Reincarnation, being merely the ordinary view of Life enlarged, that in the end merit wins out and that he gets the place who best fits himself for the position. And to those who think the Divine Right of kings but an empty phrase, I would say that in the exact proportion as this romance establishes that verity it proves in the precise ratio the Divine Right inherent in every creature to mold his own career and to shape his own destiny by fitting himself for greater things, simply by being faithful to the lesser duties imposed, or, to use the words of Illano: I but said, my Royal Mistress, that men s circumstances ever correspond to their attainments, and as certain circumstances attend every birth, it therefore follows of a certainty that these circumstances, whether as prince or pauper, must needs be the result of attainments in previous lives, for the gods are no respecters of persons, and love all creatures alike. And as a boy at school chooseth not his own desk,...
