Bureau, and Director of the Army National Guard realized the compelling reasons for quick change 24 and also knew that doing nothing would be a recipe for disaster. The Army Reserve and Army National Guard, however, do not have the ability to make significant changes in the institutional and operational Army on their own. To be successful, they need support, resources, and authority from DA and DoD. Their greatest successes since 9 11 have been changing the culture and expectations associated with reserve service in the 21st century, working to eliminate excessive RC unit structure that far exceeded authorized end strength, rebalancing force structure, and most importantly, making ready for deployment literally hundreds of thousands of soldiers in their mobilizing units. For the most part, these units were previously only funded for low readiness levels and were chronically short of soldiers and equipment when asked to mobilize. The RCs readied these units for deployment primarily by cross-leveling...
