By A Book by Me, Chloe Marie Gosa

Createspace, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Chloe Marie Gosa (illustrator). 279 x 216 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Michelle Trop was born on June 2, 1938 in Orleansais, France. Her parents, Sonia and Jacob Trop, moved to southern France from Poland in 1936. Their families lived in Poland for many generations. Jacob's father, his grandfather, and all his uncles had been bakers there. Although Jacob made a living in Orleansais as a plumber, Michelle fondly remembered the wonderful jelly roll made for Rosh Hashanah each year after the war. Restrictions were placed on the lives of Jews in Poland. Riots reflected growing anti-semitism, and when Hitler took over Germany, they heard about horrible things happening to Jews. When they moved to France, they thought they would be avoiding these problems. In the early 1930s, two of Sonia's aunts emigrated from Poland to the United States with their families in order to escape persecution. Between 1936 and 1939, life for the Trop family in Orleansais was happy. Jacob's business was going well, and Sonia enjoyed caring for baby Michelle. German troops invaded Poland in the fall of 1939. Britain and...
