Excerpt: . . . IV. The law, by promising a better covenant in which the forgiveness of sin was to be proclaimed, and the knowledge of God enlarged, made known its own imperfection, and disposed righteous men to the accepting of the Christian doctrine, as the completion of the covenant of mercy and justification, the revelation of the mystery or hidden wisdom of God. It was this which made the world of the godly long for Christ, as having commission to open the Kpwrov airo Tcov alwvtov3, the hidden mystery of justification by faith and repentance. For the law called for exact obedience, but ministered no grace but that of fear, which was not enough to the performance or the engagement of exact obedience. All, therefore, were here convinced of sin; but by this covenant they had no hopes, and therefore were to expect relief from another and...
